As a general, Grant was successishing army, he availed himself to a companies of the East are cut down general of the late war. He was at loss the fore front when the wearisome, gastly struggle closed, and he bore himself mrgnanimously toward the fallen. He will ever have the praise of military success, and he deserves moreover, such admiration as is given to the not uncommon phenome nom of a kind heart.

Gen. Grant's faults, failures and misfortunes were not of the heart, but of head.

Of all greatness, military greatness is obtained with least expense of intellect. The glory of the warrior is the most vulgar of all glories, the ces. That military greatnes is the greatness which has always had the loudest vulgar acclaim proves nothing. Why Money is Locked up.

The real obstacle to enterprise and the real weight that drags down trade, both here and abroad, is the gold standard. As Mr. Atkinson truely enough says, the doubt as to whether the standard of value will remain the same deters men from making new investments. The gold standard, instead of being fixed and steady, has been rising higher and higher for the past ten years, and accordingly prices of all kinds of commodities have been falling. accidental, the easiest won and | Whatever a man has bought or 'proand prices will go on falling for some time to come, and until capitalists can be assured that the bottom has been reached they naturally prefer to wait.
